Russians Hand Over Missiles To Cuba Forces

By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is reported to be handing over the operation of its anti-aircraft missiles in Cuba to the Castro military forces.

The transfer of the missile operations from Russian to Cuban hands is according to information obtained by the United States—going on as the Russians near completion of their troop withdrawal.

The information indicates 600 to 800 Soviet officers and men left Cuba last month and about 1,200 more are still to be withdrawn. The Soviets will leave behind, however, what is described as a permanent training mission of 800 to 1,000.

At the height of the "eyeball to eyeball" missile crisis in October 1962 the Russians were believed to have 22,000 or more troops in Cuba.

The 24-base network of surface-to-air missiles — SAMs — the Russians are turning over is believed to be capable of shooting down the American high-altitude reconnaissance planes that are patrolling Cuba.

The information here is that the central command governing the SAM sites is still under control of Soviet officers. Also, officials have given support to published reports that the advanced Soviet radar installed in the missile system has been dismantled and withdrawn. This would reduce the effectiveness of the missiles and their ability to knock down the swift American jets.

In another development Friday, the Organization of American States voted 17 to 0 to call a meeting of hemisphere foreign ministers here July 21 to consider breaking all diplomatic and economic ties with the Castro government. Mexico abstained in the vote.

Under the Inter-American Treaty of Mutual Assistance, Venezuela has asked the OAS to adopt sanctions against Cuba — the severing of diplomatic ties, a halt in economic relations and suspension of sea and air communications.

Dorsey Told He Can See Road Files

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Highway Commission told gubernatorial candidate Odell Dorsey today that he can look in the files for information about use of out-of-state engineers on highway jobs.

Dorsey made a surprise appearance at the commission's regular monthly meeting at the capitol. He had said last week he wanted to know more about the firms from other states.

Highway Commission Chairman Wayne Hampton told Dorsey that all contracts executed by the commission are reflected in annual audit reports and Dorsey is welcome to study these reports.

However, Hampton said the Highway Department has not employed any out-of-state engineers in the last two years.

Dorsey asked specifically about a New York firm which worked on the Helena Bridge. Commissioner Armit Taylor of Clarksville told him that none of the present commission members had any part in awarding the engineering contract at Helena.

Acting Highway Director Ward Goodman said engineering work is contracted so that Highway Department engineers will not be tied up with chores.

Injuries Fatal

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Billy Wayne Gabbard, 19, of Little Rock died Thursday at a hospital here of injuries suffered Saturday when his ambulance collided with a taxicab at an intersection here. Witnesses told police the ambulance, with its siren on and red light flashing, ran a stop sign.

Congress Is Set for a Final Push

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an early summer drive to get things done, Congress gave these pieces of legislation a push forward Thursday:

Mass Transit—By a 212 to 189 vote, the House passed a bill to provide $375 million in federal aid to cities that have transit problems and traffic - clogged streets. Next step: Reconciliation in a conference committee with a similar bill passed by the Senate.

Pay — Unanimously, the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee approved a pay raise for members of Congress and other federal workers that would cost the taxpayers about $550 million a year. Next step: Senate expected to take up the bill Tuesday or Wednesday.

Aid — The House Appropriations Committee cut $200 million from President Johnson's $3.5-billion foreign aid authorization request, but a perennial aid slasher, Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., promised to lead a fight to knock out $519 million on the floor. Next step: House consideration on Tuesday.

Taxes—By 77-2 vote the Senate approved a House - passed bill to extend some excise taxes but not before six amendments were tacked on that would repeal the 10 per cent levy on cosmetics, handbags and luggage and on the first $100 spent on furs and jewelry. Next step: A conference committee where House leaders pledge to reverse the Senate's slashing spree.

Appropriations — The House and then the Senate passed a resolution to allow federal agencies to spend at current levels until Aug. 31 if their annual appropriation bills have not been passed before then. Next step: great haste to pass the 12 appropriations that are still waiting in the wings.

Commission Heads Would Be Ousted

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Odell Dorsey, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for gubernatorial race, said here Thursday night that if elected he would ask at least half the members of state commissions to resign.

Dorsey said this would be part of his plan to "return state government to the people."

He addressed a politically rally sponsored by the Pulaski County Young Democrats Club. Under Dorsey's proposal, some of Gov. Orval E. Faubus' appointees would be left in office, he would ask three to resign, appoint two, and let the commissioners pick the fifth member.

Cigarette Ads To Be Regulated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Trade Commission announced today the agency has decided to issue a rule regulating the advertising and labeling of cigarettes.

Chairman Paul Rand Dixon said the purpose is to make sure that the public is informed about the health hazards of smoking.

The Average Family Income Up

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — How is the average family making out in the long business upswing? The Department of Commerce says a lot better than just a few years back. But you can start a lot of arguments with that.

For one thing, it's hard to find a family that considers itself average. For another, if the family does admit to the label, it doesn't think the figures the department publishes fit it. Finally, even the statisticians have a lot of ways figuring how the average family is doing.

For instance, the department says that the average American family income before federal income tax was $7,510 in 1963. But the midpoint of income distribution — that is, the point where as many were getting more as were getting less — was $6,140. However, $5,210 was the amount that was more frequently received than any other.

Regional living conditions make a big difference, too, in deciding how the average family income fits today's problems and standards.

Subtract taxes and the amounts the department cites are a lot lower. And they go down sharply if you figure incomes in terms of the purchasing power of the dollar from such abuse as 1929 or 1947.

Still, the department says the average family is doing better than in 1929, any way you look at it. Also it's doing better than in 1947, if you prefer a postwar base for comparison.

Studying the welter of figures the Cleveland Trust Co. says that the average before-tax income has gone up 73 per cent since 1947. Allowing for the rise in the cost of living since then, the bank figures that the real purchasing power of the average family income before taxes has advanced 36.5 per cent.

The percentage of families with before-tax income of $10,000 and more has increased from 9 per cent in 1947 to 21 per cent in 1963.

In contrast, families with incomes less than $4,000 have declined from 44 per cent of the total in 1947 to 29 per cent in 1963.

Have Signatures for Gambling

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce said Thursday it had collected more than enough signatures to get an amendment to legalize gambling on the November ballot.

The executive vice president of the chamber, Mort Cox, said petitions have been received from 50 counties, and all 75 counties will be represented before the petitions are filed with the secretary of state next week.

State law requires 30,800 signatures to get a proposal on the ballot, but Cox would not say exactly how many signatures have been returned to the chamber.

The proposed amendment would legalize gambling in Garland County under state control. Approval of a majority of those voting in the November election is needed to put the measure into the constitution.

Search For 3 Civil Rights Men Continues

By MICHAEL SMITH
PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP)

—With a personal appeal from the governor to people of this hill country "to search your own premises," the search continued today for three civil rights workers who mysteriously vanished six days ago.

"Take a few hours of your own time to search for clues," Gov. Paul B. Johnson said in a broadcast from a local radio station.

Johnson came to Philadelphia late Friday as state and federal officers—joined by 100 U.S. sailors — again fought off snakes and insects while wading through swamps in their fruitless search for the trio.

Earlier, former CIA Director Allen Dulles had recommended to President Johnson that the FBI's role against "terroristic activity" in Mississippi be expanded.

Dulles met Friday with the President to report on his two-day White House mission to Mississippi. The President and Dulles conferred by long-distance telephone with Gov. Johnson during the meeting.

Gov. Johnson, referring to the disappearance as the "mysterious missing persons case," called on all residents of Neshoba County — whites, Negroes and Indians — to cooperate in the search.

"I do want to assure the people here that the sailors have come to aid us," Gov. Johnson said. "We're glad to have them. They're fellow Americans."

The sailors are from the nearby Naval Auxiliary Air Station in Meridian.

"We do not know whether these people are alive or dead," Johnson said in his 10-minute radio talk. He expressed confidence the three men—last seen Sunday night—would be found.

"I don't know how long it will take," he added. "It might not be in my lifetime."

Shortly before the governor's arrival here, the Mississippi Highway Patrol said the blue station wagon used by the trio had been burned at least 12 hours after they vanished.

The charred vehicle used by Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andy Goodman, 20, both of New York City, and James Chaney, 22, Meridian Negro, was located in a lonely area northeast of this town of 5,000 Tuesday.

A highway patrol official said the station wagon had been driven to the spot where it was burned between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday — more than 12 hours after the trio had been escorted out of town by a deputy sheriff after paying a fine for speeding.

Chief Inspector Gwin Cole said two persons had driven past the spot at 11 a.m. Monday and reported the station wagon was not there. Choctaw Indians found the vehicle still smoking at 5 p.m. and stripped two hubcaps from it, Cole said.

See as You Talk Service Starts

NEW YORK (AP) — See as you talk telephone service linking New York, Washington and Chicago went into effect today.

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson helped the Bell Telephone Co. inaugurate the system Wednesday. She talked from Washington with Dr. Elizabeth A. Wood, a scientist in Bell laboratories here.

Two ten-aged deaf mutes also conversed on the system, reading each other's lips on the 4-inch by 5-inch television screens.

The rates are $16 for the first three minutes between New York and Washington, $21 between Chicago and Washington and $27 between Chicago and New York.

The Picturephone Centers are in Grand Central Terminal, a Chicago office building and the National Geographic Society building in Washington.

Deal Honestly, Editor Says

AUSTIN, ex. (AP)—Hugh B. Patterson Jr., publisher of the Arkansas Gazette at Little Rock, said heretofore that night that if elected he would newspapers should create an atmosphere in which politicians can deal honestly with problems such as racial integration.

Patterson addressed a conference of the Texas Council for the Social Studies.

"What we need to do is to free people of independent thought to say what they feel," Patterson said. "In the South and throughout the country, we need an atmosphere in which people in leadership can simply tell the truth and make clear the true nature of the changes that are taking place."

He said the Gazette's opposition to Gov. Orval E. Faubus' defiance of court-ordered integration "was not above and beyond the call of duty for a newspaper."

31 Negroes Are Integrated

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Little Rock School Board Thursday assigned 31 more Negro pupils to integrated schools for the coming term.

The assignments, made on appeals from original assignments, bring to 226 the number of Negroes who will attend school with whites next fall.

Thursday's reassignments included 11 involving pupils who attended integrated East Side Junior High School last year but who were assigned to Negro schools because East Side will be closed next year.

Altogether 19 East Side Negroes were assigned to Negro schools. Only the 11 appealed.

One of the routine reassignments involved Harold James Evans, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Evans. His sister, Jacquelyn Fay, was an honor graduate of integrated Hall High School and was named a presidential scholar this year.

Employment in the mining industry decreased 26.8 per cent, for example, but government employment increased 43.3 per cent, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. ## Traffic Prime Cause of July 4 Tragedy But That's Not Only Cause of Holiday Grief

By Mary Anita Lasater
Star Feature Writer

Next weekend will be filled with recreation and, if things run true to form, tragedy. The traffic toll is repeated throughout the holiday period of a Fourth of July, but we are not so conscious of other causes of accidents, perhaps, as we should be.

Knowing beforehand how to cope with a crisis can be life-saving, and this is especially true around water, for the primary cause of drowning is panic. The logical conclusion is to teach everyone in your family how to swim or have someone else teach them.

Now, suppose someone told you that your entire family, after practicing a few hours, could become such skilled swimmers that it would be almost impossible for them to drown—even if they were thrown, fully clothed, into the Atlantic 10 miles from shore? And if any or all of them can't swim a stroke to begin with?

All this sounds incredible, but according to an article in "Family Safety," a publication distributed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, it is not incredible at all. Fred R. Lanoue, professor of physical education and head swimming coach at Georgia Institute of Technology, has originated a method of survival floating which he calls "drownproofing."

Anyone—man, woman, child (except a person seriously disabled) — can be "drownproofed." He can learn to stay afloat for hours with little effort in high waves and even though suffering a cramp or injury. The only people who would not benefit by drownproofing would be those who are pinned under water, dazed, or unconscious, or so badly injured that they are totally incapacitated. Drownproofing, pure and simple, is a method of saving yourself in water under the most adverse conditions.

When dealing with the saving of lives, instructions should be given by well-qualified people. For that reason, you will not find details of drownproofing in these paragraphs. Suffice it to say here that the essential idea of drownproofing is not to try to keep your head above water constantly. Many people have grown panicky in a crisis and have drowned because of fatigue resulting from the struggle to hold the head—which weighs about 15 pounds—above the water. It's far less tiring to keep the head submerged part of the time and to come up only when you want a breath.

People ranging in age from 3 to 68 have been taught drownproofing. Lanoue has personally taught his method to about 35,000 people. Many of them were students at Georgia Tech where drownproofing is a required course for men. Among other schools that have offered drownproofing are: Indiana University, Emory University, University of Michigan, Duke University, and Harvard.

Lanoue regularly lectures and gives demonstrations throughout the world, training instructors in his method. Flint, Michigan, several years ago, set up a community-wide program, teaching drownproofing to 11,780 children and adults. The state 4-H camp in Iowa has drownproofed 14,000 youngsters in two summers.

Detailed explanations of the method can be found in Lanoue's book, "Drownproofing," published last year by Prentice-Hall, Inc. Any group who would like information on such programs as we have mentioned may write: Fred R. Lanoue, in care of "Family Safety" magazine, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Illinois.

Topless Suit Getting More Exposure

By RICHARD F. WHALEN

The topless bathing suit for women is getting still more exposure across the nation, although it proved a disappointment to 200 expectant males in Oklahoma City.

Not so in Los Angeles, where fans, mostly male, crowded around a clothing store display window where a live model was wearing the suit Thursday.

Also attracted were two sheriff's deputies, who checked with headquarters and found that nudity was not enough for arrest: lewd behavior must be proved.

In Oklahoma City about 200 persons, mostly male, gathered at a housing project after a radio station announced that a pretty girl wearing a topless suit would arrive by helicopter.

She did, and there were some red faces.

She was blonde, blue-eyed Billie Rae, 3½ years old.

Technically "topless" bathing suits were shown at a Detroit fashion show. However, it was a hair fashion show and the models appeared in waist-length hair styles resembling wide suspenders, Sam Browne belts and tie-back window curtains.

It looked scratchy and one model said it was.

Hope Diamond took a dip in a Hartford, Conn. park pond in a topless suit, and was promptly arrested for indecent exposure.

"I had a wonderful swim," she said, emerging into the arms of the law. Hope admitted the public exposure would not hurt her professionally. She's an exotic dancer.

The action was hailed as "a step of major significance" by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who has been sponsoring a similar bill for 15 years.

The Supreme Court has ruled that present congressional districts in many states are unconstitutional because they fail to provide equally weighted votes for citizens.

Johnson Woos Minnesota For Midwest Vote

By KARL BAUMAN
DETROIT (AP) — President

Johnson today carries Midwest vote wooing into Minnesota—a state that could provide his November running mate.

Both Minnesota senators, Hubert H. Humphrey and Eugene McCarthy, have figured in speculation about the Democratic vice-presidential nomination. McCarthy is up for re-election this year and can count on Johnson's unstinted blessing for a new six-year term regardless of how he fares in the vice-presidential sweepstakes.

Johnson's Minnesota schedule calls for an afternoon speech before the Democratic-Farmer-Labor convention in St. Paul and a night address before a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Minneapolis.

He will remain overnight in Minneapolis to attend an annual Swedish-American festival at Minnehaha Park there on Sunday.

With an assist from his wife, Johnson put in a bid for Michigan's 21 Electoral College votes in a speech before a $100-a-plate dinner in Detroit Friday night.

The audience included a sizeable sprinkling of big-name industrialists who ordinarily vote Republican.

Among those at the head table were Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., and Walker Cislak, chairman of the Detroit Edison Co. John F. Gordon, president of General Motors Corp., although not at a head table, went up to shake hands with Johnson.

Johnson, who has a sizeable fleet of privately owned cars, not to mention the big White House fleet available to him, quipped "I'm proud, happy and stimulated that there is a Ford in my future. And with Jack Gordon here tonight, I hope there will be a Chevy, too."

"Lady Bird and I have waited oh, so long to be a two-car family."

Johnson made his Detroit pitch to both labor and management.

He said the capitalist, the manager and the worker have built the kind of a system that has made this country the envy of the world.

"And they are all here tonight in this one room, determined and dedicated and pledged to leave America better than they found it," he added.

Johnson took occasion to needle Republicans about their feuding over a presidential candidate.

He said it was "typical of some others that their major issue in this year of change and crisis of great hazard and emerging hope is who is going to stop what."

Mrs. Johnson joined the President in Detroit in tie for the fund-raiser there after a brief vacation at Mackinac Island.

Marriages of Teenagers Big Problem

DAVIS, Calif. (AP)—Unhappy teen-age marriages are rapidly becoming one of the nation's major social problems, says a University of California professor.

"Marriage and parenthood have been oversold to America's children," Judson T. Landis, sociology professor, told a conference on marriage among the young.

As a result, he said, teenagers often view marriage as a symbol of adulthood or social acceptance and plunge headlong into an unforeseen financial struggle.

Landis said more than two million American girls between 13 and 17 are married every year and teen-age marriages last year produced about 600,000 babies.

Jeanada Nolan, who heads a governor's subcommittee on family life, blamed increased pressures for young marriages.

"Take away the threat of the draft and the bomb and we might have less urgency to assume adult roles," she said.

Robert O. Herrmann, assistant professor of business at the University of California, said teen-age husbands earn little more than $2,000 a year on the national average.

"This is about a third of the average adult wage," he said.

'Preventive' Action Not Authorized

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negro leaders got small encouragement when they asked the government to take "preventive" police action not only to protect civil rights but "the 985,000 Negro citizens" in Mississippi.

Swarms of volunteer civil rights workers are supposed to pour into Mississippi this summer. Three young men of the advance guard disappeared Sunday night and have not been seen since leaving a police station at Philadelphia, Miss.

Their burned automobile was found Tuesday. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy sent in FBI agents and Thursday President Johnson ordered 200 unarmed sailors, stationed in Mississippi, to join in the search for the missing trio.

But this action was taken after something had happened. The disappearance of the three men.

What Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, asked Kennedy to do was take "preventive" police action for Mississippi Negroes and civil rights workers before anything happened to them.

Kennedy said that even under the pending civil rights bill, not yet law, the Justice Department would have only "limited authority" to step into a racial crisis such as that in Mississippi.

He said, "It won't give us authority because we have no national police force. Our authority is very, very limited." What he had in mind was the high constitutional wall separating federal power from the rights of the states.

Nothing in the Constitution authorizes the federal government to take such ahead-of-time action as Wilkins asked. But sometimes both the Constitution and federal power take on the appearance of stretchable rubber.

When there seemed a chance of race riots in Birmingham, Ala., in 1963, President John F. Kennedy sent 3,000 troops into Alabama's military bases, near but not in Birmingham. He did not have to use them. But did he have authority to?

The Justice Department at the time said the President could have decided whether to use troops or not, if a riot started, under authority of a specific law—Article 10, Section 333 of the U.S. Code—which says:

"The president can use troops or 'any other means' to suppress domestic violence in a state if it 'hinders the execution of the laws of that state and of the United States within the state, that any part of class of its people is deprived of a right, privilege, immunity or protection named in the Constitution and the constituted authorities of that state are unable, fail, or refuse to protect that right, privilege, or immunity, or to give that protection.'"

There's a lot of latitude there if the President felt he had to act. But in that case he would have been handling an immediate problem concentrated in Birmingham. For the government to protect several hundred civil rights workers, if they were scattered around Mississippi, would be quite a task.

Yet, the government in some particular cases can act on the assumption that something happened. When a "Freedom Ride" bus was bombed in Alabama in 1961 it seemed like a local problem. But the FBI was sent in on the assumption there might have been a violation of federal law against transportation of bomb materials across state lines.

The Justice Department explained this week why the FBI was sent into Mississippi after the trio of civil rights workers, held 3½ hours by Philadelphia police, disappeared.

While no one could say for sure anything had happened to them, the Justice Department operated on the assumption it might have.

The department gave this explanation: "We wish to talk to the three men about the circumstances of their arrest. We also are investigating the possibility they are being held against their will by persons not law enforcement officers or are being deprived of their civil rights."

Federal intervention in a state is supposed to be permitted when some federal law or authority is violated or someone in government can argue it might be involved. This is pretty broad authority.

If a truly critical situation develops in Mississippi it won't be surprising if the federal government section."

The other three were two Negro men and a white woman. They had not been arrested.

Earlier, at Jackson, Miss., Bob Byers of the Council of Federated Organizations said Ridenour and Kirchenbaum had been arrested by sheriff's deputies.

They told him, Alford said, they were among five civil rights workers who have been in this area since Sunday. Alford quoted them that they were "cauvassing homes in the Ne-

I was in the middle of a sleepy little village. You could see the whole length of the main street. There were only two bars on the street. I pulled down to the second one, called the B & B.

It was a typical small-town bar. There was a bowling machine, a jukebox, a cigarette machine, and the bar. There was a room in the back, but it was dark and empty. Three men sat at the bar—all with beers in front of them. I sat at the end of the bar where I could see through the window. The bartender came over. He was a short, heavy-set young fellow who looked Irish.

"Make it a double. Not too much ice."

He smiled and went away to come back with a glass and one ice cube. He poured out the two shots and left the bottle. I put out two bills on the bar and he gave me 80 cents change.

"A quiet town," I said. "You can say that again," he said. "You from the city?"

I nodded. "I came up from the city eight years ago," he said, "and took over this place. Believe me, if I could find a buyer, I'd go back. You wouldn't like to buy a good bar, would you?"

"Not me. I have too many bars all over the country I have to support." He laughed and I waited until he had enjoyed it.

"Is there a decent motel around here where I can stay?"

"Up that street there," he said, "about a mile, just past 9-W. Nice rooms."

"Sounds good," I said. I'd noticed, by looking through the window, that Nick Pottli had been having a long talk with the taxi driver. He must have lost his argument because he'd just paid off the driver and climbed out.

"I'll go along and register in the motel. I'll be around later."

"Okay," he said. "I'm Eddie Sales."

"Milo March," I said as we shook hands. "Tell me, is there a slightly round-about way for me to reach that motel without going straight up that street?"

His expression became more alert. "The guy who just got out of the New York City cab?" he asked.

"That's about the size of it,"

I said. "I'd rather he wasn't sure which direction I was taking."

He gave the directions and a few minutes later I'd registered at the motel and was taking a nap.

It was six o'clock when I awakened. I felt a little better. I got up and washed my face. I put on my tie and coat and went out. I drove back the way I had come.

I pulled in beside the B & B and parked, then went inside. This time the bar was busy. I finally found a seat at one end. Eddie Sales saw me and came over with the bottle and a glass with ice in it.

"A double?" he asked. I nodded and he poured it. "Don't go away," he said. "I have something to tell you, but I have to fill some empty glasses."

He went to work. I sipped my drink. Everyone was talking, mostly about other people.

At last Eddie Sales came back. He rested his face on one fist, to make it harder for the man on the next stool to hear.

"Your friend came in after you left today."

"My friend?"

"Yeah. They guy who got out of the New York City cab while you were here. He wanted to know where you went. I told him you asked the way to Route 32. You reach it by the way you started, but without making the turn off you made." He seemed very pleased with himself.

"Thanks," I said. "He'll be back. The next time you can tell him where I am. It's not important and he's a touchy boy. I wouldn't want you to get involved."

He nodded and went back to work as I left. I drove down the street and easily found the hotel. There was a parking lot in the rear.

The first person I saw, as I was being led to a table, was Nick Pottli. His face brightened somewhat at the sight of me. I ordered a dry martini and after I'd had a couple of sips I got up and went over to Nick's table.

"Enjoying yourself, Nick?" I asked.

"What are you doing in this hick town?" he asked. "It's enough to drive a guy nuts. 'It's a pleasant rural retreat,' I said. 'Besides, you should find plenty of friends around. Jerry Dell must be somewhere near and I understand that Manny Roberts has a lot of boys around too.'"

"You can have all the hick towns in the world. I don't like them."

"Well, you might as well make the best of it, Nick," I said. "We're liable to be here for a few days. Incidentally, if you don't feel like it you don't have to follow me when I leave after dinner. I'm staying at the George Washington Motel on Cornwall Street."

Says River Project Needs More Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee was told Wednesday that the construction program of the Arkansas River navigation project will fall behind schedule if Congress does not add $10 million to the project appropriation.

Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and A. S. (Mike) Monroney, D-Okla., questioned Lt. Gen. Jackson Graham, deputy chief of Army Engineers, before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Although the President's budget for fiscal 1965 recommends $84 million for the project in Arkansas and Oklahoma, the House recently voted $69 million for it.

The project involves a nine-foot channel for a 452-mile segment of the river from its junction with the Mississippi River to Catosa, Okla., 13 miles east of Tulsa.

The Budget Bureau said the project can be kept on schedule with an extra $12 million or $12.5 million over the budget figure, McClellan said. This would be an appropriation of about $96 million.

Engineers say they have to have $99 million or completion of the project will be delayed at least one year.

Graham said the figures McClellan mentioned had been mentioned in conversations between Engineers and Budget Bureau officials, but he said the Engineers had insisted on assurances that if $1 million was added and proved to be inadequate, then the entire $15 million would be provided.

Army Engineer information is that a year's delay in completing the project would add between $10 million and $11 million in costs of material and labor and over $800,000 in added land costs, McClellan said.

In addition, some $60 million in anticipated benefits — transportation costs, flood control, recreation — would be lost through each year of delay.

McClellan drew from Graham at admission that this would be "false economy."

McClellan said the $84 million budgeted is 17.6 per cent below work capabilities of the Army Engineers and that even the $99 million required to keep the project on schedule is 15.1 per cent below that capability.

McClellan said "I realize the administration has a frugality program, but I insist that these figures constitute an inequitable imposition of frugality on this project."

He added that he would appeal to all branches of government for "equity and justice."

Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said somewhat similar cases have been made before his group for several other projects.

Ellender suggested the sponsors and the Engineers seek White House approval of the larger amount required to keep the project on schedule and obtain and supplementary budget recommendation.

He said if this was done he believed his subcommittee would approve the amount and he would anticipate no difficulty in getting the House to accept it.

"DEAR ABBY"

IT'S NOT FOR A BOY!

By Abigail Van Buren
Dear Abby: We moved into a new neighborhood and I started going to the neighborhood beauty shop. The last two times I went, the same lady was there in her slip with her big fat legs showing as well as her bosom. Another lady took off her blouse and sat there in a thin nylon bra. The lady in the slip didn't care what showed. I go to the beauty shop every Saturday and my 8-year-old son likes to go with me. He was so embarrassed by all these half-dressed women he could hardly keep his mind on his comics. He has plenty of time before he has to learn what half-dressed women look like. He doesn't have to learn it at 8 years of age in a beauty shop. Should I tell those brazen women to be more modest? Or should I ask the shop manager to keep her customers covered?

NEW CUSTOMER
Dear New: Women in various stages of undress have more business in a beauty shop than an eight-year-old boy. Leave the lad at home.

Dear Abby: Why would a young, intelligent married woman go to someone's home for dinner with her hair done up in rollers and a scarf when she had been told there would be 16 other guests? I hope you can think of a good excuse for her because she is really a good girl otherwise.

Baffled
Dear Baffled: She'll have to think of her own "excuses". But if you are interested in the reason, it is obvious. She's saving her best self for a worthwhile occasion, which is no compliment to her hostess.

Dear Abby: My boy friend is not quite 17 and he has grown a mustache—at least, that's what he calls it. It isn't very thick or dark. In fact, it just looks like he forgot to wash his face, but, nevertheless, it is a mustache and he thinks it looks good. Everyone makes fun of it behind his back. When my mother saw it for the first time, she had to bite her lip to keep from laughing. I really wish he would shave it off. How should I tell him? I hate to hurt his feelings.

KATHY
Dear Kathy: Tell him in the signed herself "Waiting" is not yours you can find. But TELL him.

Dear Abby: The woman who signed herself "Waiting" is not the only one whose husband uses poker games as a cover up for evenings spent with other women. How do I know? Because I was the "other woman" (for a while). I later learned that there had been many in his life before me. He is in his fifties, married, a devoted father and grandfather. But what kind of husband? I am glad I was only the "other woman" instead of his wife.

die to live

The Book says this earthly body must die IF it is to live. How cheerfully the farmer plants his corn! He knows it must die, but he also knows that 'death' is part of the process of life. Immediately after the seed is buried in mother earth, all the ministries of God are set in motion to work a miracle. For it is said, that to make one little yellow grain, requires the sunshine and the rain, the hoarded riches of the sod — and God. It is all the miracle of Life. The hull rots and falls away much like the sins of a man being reborn of God. It is the Lord's way of carrying on His creative process to multiply the sustenance of both man and beast. Then thank God for life that is born of death. The fruit of summer and of autumn waits upon this death-to-life miracle of a good God, as a reborn soul waits to be used of his Lord. Then, there is no death... what seems so is transition. Come with me to church this week.
